UNITED STATES BRIDGE CHAMPIONSHIPS

“Trials” and Tribulations

Welcome to Phoenix ... History:

Native Americans Removed to Make Way for White Settlers

The city of Phoenix stands on the site of a prehistoric settlement built by Native Americans, the Hohokam tribe, who had established a thriving culture but who vanished without a trace around 1450 A.D. Thought to be the ancestors of the Pima—"Hohokam" means "those who have gone" in Pima—the Hohokam had constructed a sophisticated system of irrigation canals, many of which are still in use today, that remain as evidence of their existence.

Permanent resettlement of the Hohokam site did not come until the late 1860s; in the interim the area shared the history of the rest of the state. Hispanic conquistadors invaded Arizona in the 1500s in search of the Seven Cities of Cibola, bringing with them cattle, horses, and new agricultural methods. They were followed by miners, traders, and farmers whose presence was tolerated by the Native Americans until the 1850s, when it became apparent that the white settlers were encroaching on their land. Battles between the settlers and the tribes brought intervention by the U.S. military and the tribes were eventually confined to reservations.

City Thrives as Trade Center; Irrigation Aids Farms, Industry

In 1864 a U.S. Army post, a supply camp for nearby Camp McDowell, was set up on the ruins of the Hohokam settlement. Then in 1867 the Hohokam's irrigation canals were rebuilt by two settlers, one of whom called the place "Phoenix." He predicted that, like the mythical phoenix bird rising from its own ashes, a great city would emerge from the ruins. Incorporated in 1881, Phoenix rapidly developed into a major trading center with the building of the railroad in 1887 and became the capital of the Arizona territory in 1889; it was named the capital of the state of Arizona in 1912.

Phoenix gained a reputation as a rowdy frontier town because of its saloons, gambling palaces, and general outlaw atmosphere. Law and order were restored by the turn of the century, however, and Phoenix entered a new phase. The railroad, bringing settlers from throughout the country, established an immigration pattern that has continued steadily without interruption; during the three decades following World War II, for instance, the population of Phoenix increased from roughly 107,000 to nearly 790,000 people.

Major technological advances during the first half of the twentieth century—the Roosevelt Dam on the Salt River, the Southern Pacific Railroad, the advent of air conditioning, and the Central Arizona Project aqueduct system—brought about agricultural and industrial development that also fueled tremendous growth. In the 1990s Phoenix went through its third major growth boom in four decades, partly a result of a large influx of people from California. The city has begun to experience the effects of urban sprawl, including serious air pollution. Entering the twenty-first century, Phoenix's landscape consists of Hispanic colonial and Indian pueblo architecture interspersed with gleaming high-rise office buildings. The economic success of the area has spurred a continuing population growth and nearly all business indicators present positive gains. The City Council has allotted $1 billion in public and private projects to enhance and maintain the community. This foresight, in conjunction with the natural appeal of the environment, prepares the city for boundless prosperity.

No Electronic Devices are Permitted in the Playing Area.

This applies to players AND kibitzers.

Severe penalties will be assessed for violation of this rule.

Please turn off all cell phones and check them at the door.

The USBF reserves the right to wand anyone entering the playing field.

Hospitality Suite Information

The hospitality suite for the 2014 USBC will be the Kayenta Suite (room 2052). Our wonderful hostesses, Lisa Berkowitz and Molly O'Neill will make the "trek" to Phoenix to welcome you to the Hospitality Suite during the tournament. Because the hotel serves breakfast every morning, we will not be serving breakfast in the hospitality suite. Please join us for:

Lunch on Monday-Sunday from 2:30-4:00.

Vugraph, casual chit chat, drinks & snacks during the rest of the playing hours and for a short time after the end of the day.

NOTE: on Friday-Sunday, we have arranged with the hotel to have a buffet lunch available at the break between sessions. More information about location and logistics as soon as we work it all out with the hotel.

As we have the last two years, we will also have a "Players' Break Room" (aka Jan's office) near the playing rooms from Tuesday on. We will have coffee, soft drinks and some snacks available in that room while you wait for your slow teammates to finish playing.

Mothers of Small Boys Say:

A king size waterbed holds enough water to fill a 2000 sq. ft. house, 4 inches deep.

A 3-year old boy's voice is louder than 200 adults in a crowded restaurant.

When you hear the toilet flush and the words 'uh oh' , it's already too late.

Brake fluid mixed with Clorox makes smoke, and lots of it.

A six-year old boy can start a fire with a flint rock even though a 36-year old Man says they can only do it in the movies.

Certain Lego's will pass through the digestive tract of a 4-year old Boy.

Play dough and microwave should not be used in the same sentence.

Super glue is forever.

No matter how much Jell-O you put in a swimming pool you still can't walk on water.

Pool filters do not like Jell-O.

Garbage bags do not make good parachutes.

Marbles in gas tanks make lots of noise when driving.

You probably DO NOT want to know what that odor is.

The fire department in Austin, Texas has a 5-minute response time.

The spin cycle on the washing machine does not make earthworms dizzy.

It will, however, make cats dizzy.

Cats throw up twice their body weight when dizzy.

80% of men who read this will try mixing the Clorox and brake fluid.

Ten Best Chinese Restaurants in Metro Phoenix by Heather Hoch and Lauren Saria (5/5/14)

Chou's Kitchen: If you know where to look, it's not hard to find good Chinese food in the Valley. But finding another place that serves northeastern Chinese cuisine like Chou's Kitchen in Chandler? Well, good luck. This humble restaurant has plenty to offer on its menu of unique dongbei cai delights and specializes specifically in doughy dumplings. We like to start with an order of the xiaolongbao (soup dumplings). Chou's version offers a delicate wrapper that holds in a flavorful meat filling and a mouthful of precious juices. Continue your meal with a bubbling hot pot or an order of the cold noodles, an spicy dish that's actually served at room temperature. (910 N. Alma School Road, Chandler, 480-821-2888)

King Wah Express: You might know King Wah Express as Lucky's King Wah, but either way you refer to it, it means the same thing: flavorful, authentic Cantonese fare in a low-key Glendale strip mall. You may have heard about the chef's special at Lucky's, which entails sitting down and letting the chef cook you something delicious and suited to your allergy/spice tolerance. That's definitely the way to go at King Wah, but if you're not up for mystery, try out the sizzling, bubbling short rib and eggplant hot pot. Even the fried rice is the best you'll find in town. (4306 W. Northern Ave., Glendale, 623-937-3960)

China Magic Noodle House: It's true, many people come to China Magic Noodle House for the show. But that doesn't mean that the food — noodles and non-noodle dishes included — isn't top-notch. You'll watch as the talented chefs stretch and sling and toss and chop fresh dough into noodle form before it arrives at your table. You can choose from five types of noodles to be served in soups, fried, or smothered in sauces. We particularly enjoy the shaved noodles, which are hand-cut from a piece of noodle dough. The thick, short noodles make for a perfect foundation for the saucy dishes. (2015 N. Dobson Road, Chandler, 480-786-8002, www.chinamagicnoodle.com)

China Chili: Downtowners know to go to China Chili on any holiday that typically closes other restaurants in the area. It's why it's packed full of people, with an hour wait or more, on Christmas Eve. Luckily, if you go at other times, you won't be met with such a wait, but there will be a steady buzz of folks dining around Lazy Susans and sharing plates of yu shiang chicken and salt-and-pepper pork chops. We like to start with a big bowl of meaty West Lake soup. Fair warning: Even during off times, the service at China Chili tends to be on the slow side, but good things come to those who wait. (302 E. Flower St., 602-266-4463, www.chinachilirestaurant.com)

New Hong Kong: If you drive on East Indian School Road near 24th Street, it's hard to miss the giant neon sign that reads "Hong Kong Restaurant" and advertises an all-you-can-eat lunch buffet. But don't let the old-school appearance fool you: This Central Phoenix spot is a go-to spot for top-quality Cantonese cuisine. The family-run New Hong Kong comes courtesy of Chinese chef Jian Yu and has both an American menu and a Chinese one. Smart diners will make sure they order off the latter. That's where you'll find authentic options like flavor-packed hot pots, pigs feet, and more. Less adventurous diners can opt for knockout dishes including the black pepper beef, salt-and-pepper pork, and West Lake soup. (2328 E. Indian School Road, 602-954-9118)

King Wong: There's arguably no sweeter family in the Chinese take-out game than the one that runs King Wong. We love supporting their family business, and the restaurant's absolutely gigantic delivery area, cheap deals, and monster portions make it that much easier to adore. Twice-cooked pork (double the tasty breading!) is a favorite on lazy nights in, and one entrée-size order can supply three filling meals. Call in your order and pick it up, or, if you live pretty much anywhere in East Phoenix (including parts of downtown and Arcadia), you can have King Wong bring the food to your door. (2545 N. 32nd St., 602-954-8088, www.kingwongaz.com)

Nee House: For those who live in the North Phoenix neighborhood around Nee House, this restaurant is a blessing. Amid chains and fast food spots, Nee House offers a solid menu of remarkably good, authentic Chinese dishes, with a few Americanized entrees as well. If you're feeling adventurous, go for something from the sea. The restaurant offers everything from sea cucumber to whole lobsters, which will be plucked from the tanks at the back of the dining room and prepared however you wish. Talk about fresh. (13843 N. Tatum Blvd., 602-992-3338)

Asian Café Express: Asian Café Express is an institution of legit Hong Kong-style cuisine in Phoenix. If you're one of those naysayers who say you can't find this kind of food in the Valley, simmer down and check out this eatery off Main Street and Dobson in Mesa. You'll find a seemingly endless menu of dinner combos. But don't be intimidated; just crack open the big old menu and point at pretty much anything — you're sure to get the best of the best. For soup lovers, though, you absolutely have to try the preserved pickle and shredded pork soup with ho fun noodles. The fatty, decadent broth, hunks of pork, and thin noodles may be the key to happiness. (1911 W. Main St., Ste. 3, Mesa, 480-668-5910, www.asiancafeexpress.com)

Great Wall Cuisine: Do you know how we know Great Wall Cuisine has authentic dim sum? It has chicken feet. And they're delicious. The rest of the dim sum spread also is impressive, with towering piles of noodles, crispy egg rolls, and dumplings of all varieties. The restaurant attracts a large Sunday-morning crowd, so be prepared to wait — or visit on Saturday, when there are fewer diners. The restaurant's regular dinner and lunch services are worthwhile too, with a giant menu of à la carte dishes, from Americanized favorites to more authentic fare. (5057 N. 35th Ave., 602-973-1112)

Wahsun: We won't sugarcoat it: Wahsun does not wow in terms of ambiance. If you're looking for fancy décor and background music, go elsewhere. However, if you're looking for an array of freshly made sauces with explosive flavor smothering perfectly prepared veggies, tofu, and meat served in homey dishes, you've come to the right place. If you're not brought to your knees by Wahsun's roast duck, which is only $8 for a generous portion of half duck, you're made of stone. Seriously, that duck, which is spiced perfectly with heaps of Chinese five spice on its crispy skin, is a showstopper. (8056 N. 19th Ave., 602-995-4606, www.wahsunrestaurant.com)

Practice Makes Perfect...

Again on Tuesday, Katz/Nickell were found practicing on BBO. And again, their opponents were Chorush and Edgar.

The opening lead was the D4. It went small, ten, ace. Katz ran the CQ and it held. He was certain from the bidding that trump was not splitting well so he played his H6, and when Chorush played his 5, Katz inserted dummy's 9. He was rewarded when Edgar pitched a diamond.

Katz played ace of hearts and a heart to his king, Edgar throwing one diamond and the SA. Katz continued pulling the rest of the trump, Edgar throwing another diamond and the SK. Katz now guessed correctly... He made the key play of his CJ burying East's ten.

Katz could claim 11 tricks and 10.5 IMPs.

Saving Time ... or Getting Ready for the Round of 16

Tuesday afternoon found the Gordon team on line with Gordon and Pratap playing against Pepsi and Seamon. Seamon found an excellent save against his teammates' four heart game.

Pratap and Gordon did well to bid their 19 HCP game. Pratap, with virtually no cards, but a five card trump fit, jumped to the game at unfavorable vulnerability. It was brave and it would have worked... had he not had a wise teammate who took out insurance.

In hearts, it will likely go spade/spade, declarer winning in hand then cashing two rounds of trump. A club will go to the king and a small diamond will produce the nine, king, ace. Whatever East returns, declarer will win and concede the DQ, claiming ten tricks.

Seamon took the push to four spades.

Gordon took his heart king and watched his ace ruffed by declarer.

Trumps were extracted and Seamon went about the obvious, conceding two clubs, one diamond, and one heart for down one.

Minus fifty was worth 9 IMPs!

Emily Post spent last weekend at a family reunion, hosted by her grandparents in Iowa. Most of her large, sprawling family was able to attend, traveling from all corners of the country. Even she had to travel, coming from Texas where she'd stayed after finishing college. She discovered that four other relatives had traveled even farther than her. Determine each relative's full name, what their relation to Emily was (one was a cousin), and from which state each came.

1. Adam's last name wasn't Post.
2. Emily's nephew came from New York.
3. Rachel was her mother.
4. Barbara, whose last name wasn't Grant, came from Arizona.
5. The two relatives with West for a last name were the relative from Florida and her uncle.
6. Walter wasn't from Georgia.
